We are here to assist you on your journey to meet the Revised National Quality Standards and in particular NQS Areas: QA: 4,5,6,7

You know the key to success within the early education environment is based on your teams ability to communicate effectively.

Trust has to be a number one factor within the early education environment. Without it misunderstandings quickly occur, emotions run high and a disproportionate amount of time can get wasted on resolving conflict.

You're looking for ways in which your team can learn to be more conscious in their communication and learn new tools. You want to increase their awareness about the importance trust plays in all communication and how to build trust as well as effectively respond to conflict.

The Conscious Communication Team Workshop provides just that.

It provides an opportunity for teams to reflect on their own communication. To learn why trust plays such an important role in all communication and how to build trust, even when conflict arises.

The overall workshop encompasses information and tools involved in building trust, conflict resolution, confidence building and communication.

This workshop provides a highly interactive and practical based learning experience. It is delivered in a fun, relaxed and playful style!

THIS TEAM WORKSHOP IS DESIGNED TO HELP PARTICIPANTS TRANSFORM THEIR COMMUNICATION

This six hour workshop provides connection, transformational shifts in thinking, new perspectives and a playful environment to reflect on your practices as individual early education professionals, as well as a whole team.

You will learn to:-

- Understand what gets in the way of good communication
- Explore the impact good and difficult conversations have on the way our brains work
- Learn the importance of trust and it's impact on our ability to communicate
- Gain new insights into the conversational patterns and how to read them
- Design a plan for success to move you into action.

This workshop complements our Engagement Is Key Team Workshop and provides a valuable follow on. To find out more details please contact Sarah Moore at info@earlyeducationleadership.com
